CENTRAL AREA COMMUNITY FESTIVAL

The Central Area Community Festival is looking to host its 14th annual festival on August 21-22, 2010. Last years' economic crisis presented many of us with challenges that we have worked to overcome. While this cloud of uncertainty may be present in many of our lives today we still are looking forward to the future with the hope of brighter days.

Due to this crisis last year CACF funding support fell short of its expected goal that led CACF to host a one-day festival event. Now that this crisis is in our rearview mirror CACF is working to return to a two-day festival this year. Our festival is totally dependent on support funding. CACF has no paid staff or volunteers and every year we work to reduce operational cost without affecting the quality of this event. CACF is honored with its role in the community and we understand that accountability and responsibility are the guides to a successful event.

The mission of CACF is to grow the community by strengthen community pride, integrity and spiritually by promoting cultural diversity through education.

Will you be able to participate in this years' festival? Many of our previous participants have placed an interest in returning and we are encouraged by the level of interest. We are holding our cost down and will pass those savings onto the participants.

Central Area Community Festival is an event that provides a venue for the Community to share in art, culture and education by raising ones awareness on issues that affect the quality of their life.

As the Director of the annual Central Area Community Festival [CACF] we are excited about this years' festival and we are looking forward to having you take part in this years' festive event.

Thanks
Vic Minor, Director CACF
